✂ In your local Sunday Newspaper. Inside you’ll find inserts loaded with coupons — nearly 90% of all manufacturer’s coupons issued in the United States are delivered in your Sunday paper.

✂ Look in the store. You’ll find coupons in the retailer’s advertising flyer, on the shelf, at kiosks, and even at the check-out. Turn your register receipt over — sometimes there will be coupons there too!

✂ Try samples offered in the store and you’ll often be offered a coupon to take home a package of the newest and greatest products.

✂ Check the product package. Your favorite brands want you to keep buying their product, so you’ll find coupons on the package, or inside, for the next purchase.

✂ Look on the internet. There are coupon sites where you can print coupons and find providers who will email you coupons.

✂ A product manufacturer’s Web site may offer coupons for brands you love. Don’t forget to check your favorite store’s Web site too for coupons! Be cautious online, however, of someone offering to sell you manufacturer coupons ... there’s no need to buy them when there are so many available free!

✂ Open your mail box — you’ll find coupons sent right to your door step. Put your name and address on coupons you redeem to get more coupons sent to you in the future.

✂ Magazines are another great source for coupons. You’ll find them right on the advertising page, or sometimes inserted between the magazine pages.

✂ Smart coupon shoppers keep their eyes peeled for coupons — you’ll find them just about everywhere!
